

SEND Review:

Right support, Right place, Right time

Have your say on the Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) and alternative provision (AP) system in England.

The government has published a green paper on the future of the special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) and alternative provision (AP) system and is undertaking a public consultation on the green paper's proposals.

The SEND Review sets out the government's proposals for a system that offers children and young people the opportunity to thrive, with access to the right support, in the right place, and at the right time, so they can fulfil their potential and lead happy, healthy and productive adult lives.

The DfE are seeking views on the green paper about the changes they want to make to the special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) and alternative provision (AP) system in England, which will close on 1st July.

The council are planning a series of engagement events to inform the 'Bromley' response.
